

FEBRUARY 2007

FISHING CONDITIONS

Currently the Lake is running at 54 degrees and the water visibility is 31 feet. Fishing continues to be excellent, with bi-weekly 4000 pound stocks of rainbow trout continuing throughout the winter season. The main focus on anglers during January has been just outside the Marina area in front of the shore fishing area. This area has been productive for trout during the past 2 months. Shore fishing has been fairly productive with patience and variety of bait presentation being important. Anglers have been successful with a variety of casting lures, night crawlers and power bait. The fish are moving around in schools, making the fishing both fun and challenging. Schools of fish are scattered throughout the water column with some seen on the surface and others near the bottom. Most fish have been in caught in 30 feet or less depths. As the days grow longer during the month of February and the water temperatures rises to 60 degrees once again, the annual Largemouth Bass spawn will begin in the Lake. Bass are still in their hibernation mode with the cold water conditions.
